Foreword

All through history, bold men have set out to seek the unknown lands beyond the horizon. Columbus, Magellan, Balboa, Cook, Perry, and Byrd represent different periods in history, but they had one thing in common: a motive force which spurred them on. The urge to bring new lands, new riches, new knowledge into the possession of their countrymen made their lives epics of adventure and accomplishment.

Today few areas of the globe remain uncharted. Yet the inner drive that drove men across alien seas in search of new lands still has a place in modern life. In science, art, government, and philosophy the questing spirit still prods us on to achievement.

Alma Mater

Near the valley's purple mountains
On the golden tinted plain,
Near the padre's sacred fountains
Reaching to the sounding main,
Stands our noble Alma Mater,
Stands the high school that we love,
And our noble aspirations
Are inspired by Heav'n above,
We shall always love our high school
As her sons and daughters should;
And our fondest, noble wishes
Are for you, North Hollywood.

Captain John G. Fox, Principal

Who is he? Just the head man on board, that's all. He's the skipper, and definitely worthy of his post on the bridge.

A good skipper must handle his ship with skill and assurance, and he must know his crew. Mr. Fox's gift for management equips him to meet the first requirement. Every day brings a variety of vexations. Student and faculty problems, community relations, school policy — all these matters, demand their share of Mr. Fox's time. The needs and wishes of the crew must also be considered. Few real-life salt-water skippers give as much thought to this aspect of their jobs.

It looks easy — just sit behind a desk and give orders. Maybe it is — if you really know the ropes. By this token, Mr. Fox must find his job fairly simple.

Government

Here at N.H.H.S. the student body expresses its will through the Student Council. Our council consists of the various student body officers, including the President Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, and an assortment of commissioners. New members are elected each semester.

This year both the Fall and Spring councils worked vigorously to arrange a lively program of extra-curricular activities. They cooked up several informal dances, not forgetting to put on the 1951 version of the traditional Sadie Hawkins romp. As usual, on this occasion, it was the boys who had to wait to be asked. Another big evenings credited to the Council: A friendship Dance (complete with Mr. Howdy).

The Council arranged several assemblies this year. In addition to a couple of promotional shows built around local talent, there were several assemblies featuring imported performers. One show highlighted a top-flight men's chorus from Glendale College; another featured the Basin Street rhythms of Jefferson High School's rollicking swing band.

This year, also, the Spring Council presented an amended school constitution to the students. The revised document was rejected by popular vote, however.

All in all both of this years Councils deserve "A" for Accomplishment.

The main purpose of the Girls' League is to organize, publicize, and decorate the school dances. It also sponsors the Winter Carnival and the Spring Festival, at which the Senior Aye queen is crowned. Her court includes two attendants from each class. The program which is presented to the queen and her attendants usually consists of skits by the faculty, clubs, and students.

These officials have been busy, busy, busy all year, lining up noon activities. As for instance, a noon volleyball league took shape, as did a noon basketball league. In addition, Boys' League officers went to bat for lunch-time music, with the result that the administration gave the Radio Speech Class permission to present the daily record show.

Able leadership was offered the League by the President for the Fall semester, Page Weddington, and the prexy for Spring, Chuck Vogel.

Board Of Representatives

"Let's have a coke machine in every class-room, escalators in every building abolish schoolbooks!"

Once a month the Board of Representatives meets to consider suggestions made by students. Few if any are as impractical as those above; many have become realities. The board can't instigate activities — it can only make suggestions to the student council. Even so, it's had a hand in many of the year's most popular events.

Among other things, the group has plugged noon dances. Several materialized. They were the real thing, complete with music by D'Vaughn Pershing and his band. In addition, the Clean Campus program came in for some attention.

Every second period class sends two representatives to the board. The Vice President of the student body presides over all meetings. Next year the workings of the outfit will be somewhat different. Up to now, each member came to the meetings armed with suggestions from the class he represented. But, there'll be some changes made. Hereafter, the group will work from an agenda prepared in advance.

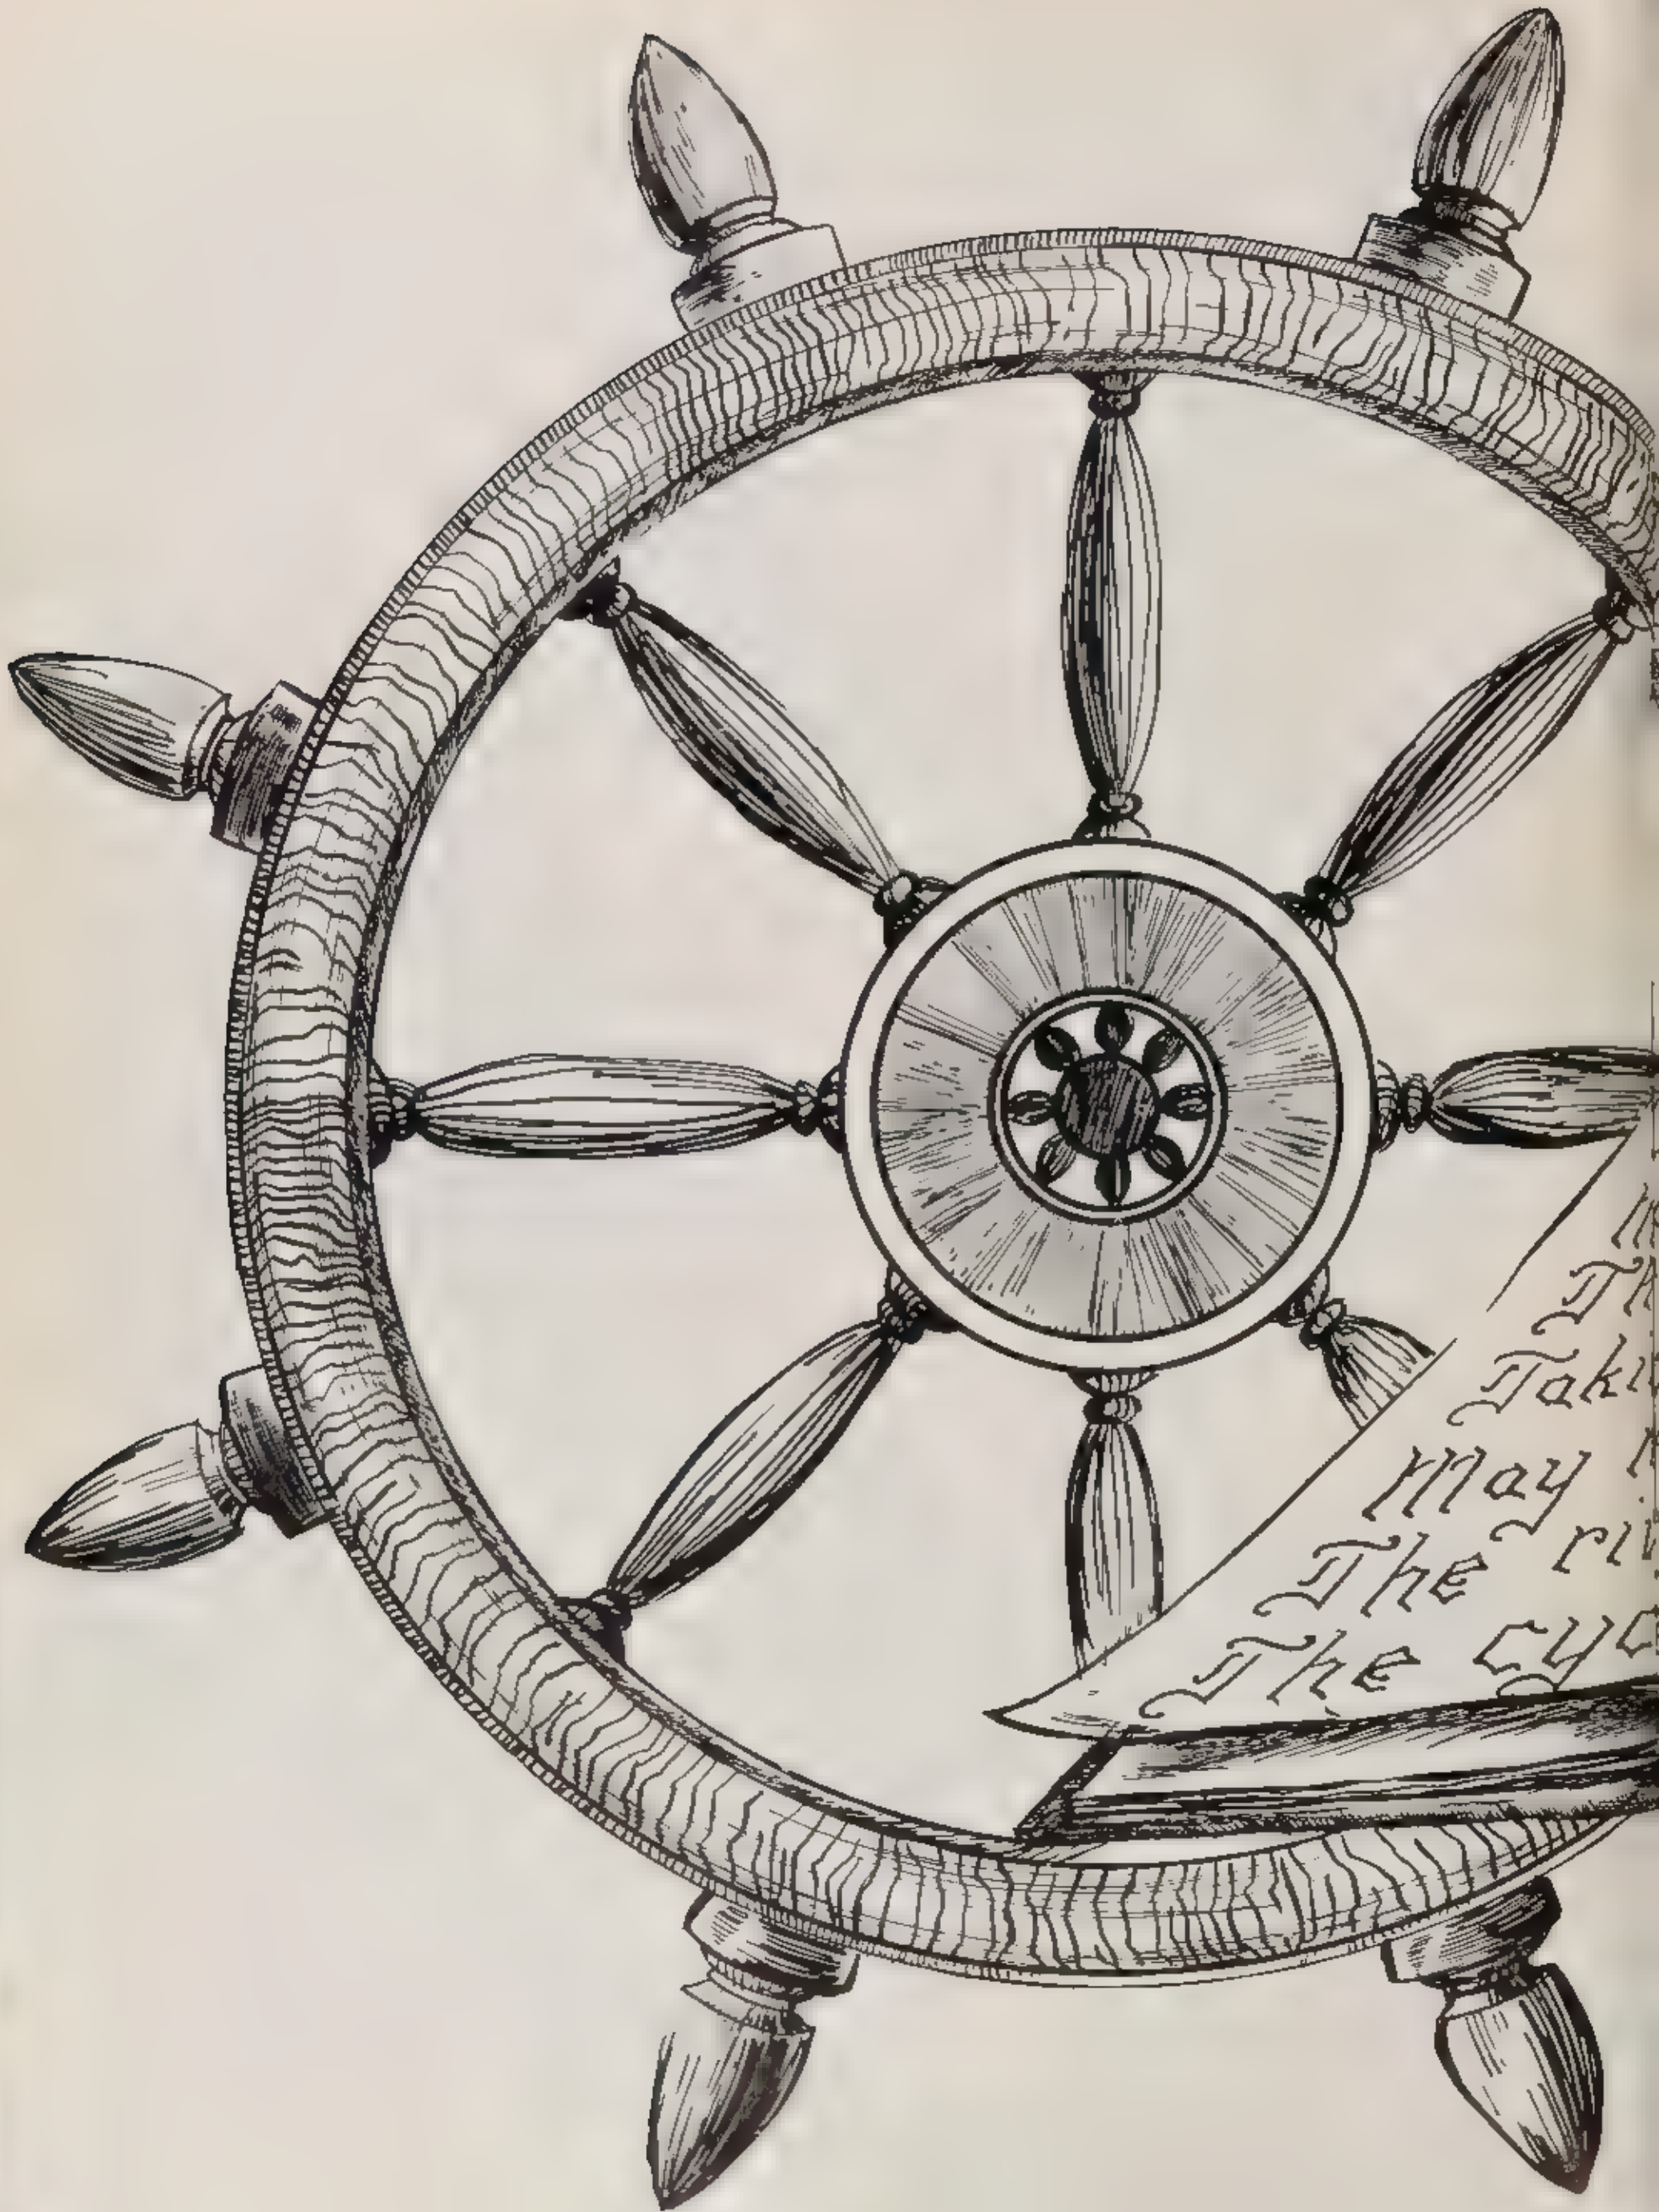

"That way," points out sponsor Mr. Alexander, "we can concentrate on the suggestions that have plenty of student backing." The individual members may have less opportunity to present their pet schemes. "But," insists Mr. Alexander, "we never have any trouble finding out what the kids want."

Even using this new modus operandi, the board will have to go some to surpass this year's record of success.

North Hollywood's varsity gym squad came up with their second straight Valley League title and Coach John Sanders once again turned in an excellent job of coaching.

Jack Wells was the team's big gun as the well-built muscleman turned in an average of three firsts a meet. His main feat came in the Valley finals where he totaled three first and a fourth.

Gilbert Jiminez once again captured the Valley ring title while Dean Luke won the side horse, and Hal Schiff the rope. Rusty Tamblin was the Valley's class in tumbling but the junior was absent from the finals in his pet event, the free "X."

Basketball

High honors were paid to the first string varsity, and of course top man was flashy Duane Robbins, ace forward who tallied over 200 points in 11 league affairs. Robins was placed on the first string all city team, first squad all valley, and named San Fernando Valley League Player of the Year . . .

David DeGroote, high-scoring center, and Charley Reed, swift-moving guard, were also placed on the first all-valley squad. Captain and all around guard Richie Morse was named to the all-league second team while the other forward, Maurice Herberg, placed on the third team.

North Hollywood's varsity cage crew completed a very successful basketball season under Coach Al Lundy by placing third in the colorful city cage tournament and landing Duane Robbins on the first string All City squad.

The Huskies once again brought down the Valley League title and advanced to the city tournament after the league season, and except for a 60-59 loss to the Hollywood Sheiks, romped through the tourney with but one loss.

Baseball

North Hollywood's varsity ball club came up with an outstanding season with plenty of thrills and well-pitched ball games.

After getting off to a poor league start, the team under Coach John Osterman downed all other Valley foes to once again bring home the team-championship. Great pitching was turned in by big Ralph Mauriello who is still undefeated at the time of this writing. His top game was a no-hitter against Verdugo Hills. First-baseman Moe Winters led the Valley in batting through the league games, while Richie Morse and Billy Wells were the other two big guns. Morse was the league's most valuable short stop and Wells was once again backstop king. Other fine ball was turned in by Bert Convy, Dan Davis, and Bob Smith.

BEE TRACK

North Hollywood's Bee track team enjoyed a victorious season behind the great running of Bob Silverman and Keith Ryan plus the excellent shot putting by Stan Dailey.

Silverman raced to a 10.4 clocking in the century while Ryan tied the school record in the highs and Dailey set a new school record in the shot.

R. O. T. C.

It's surprising that an organization as active as North Hollywood's R.O.T.C. unit should be so little known among the students. Most non-members are aware of its existence, but we aren't well up on its structure and activities.

The group's membership is divided into two companies, each led by three cadet officers with the assistance of cadet non-coms. The companies are broken down into platoons, and the platoons into squads. The group boasts a five-man rifle team, which this year took part in two inter-collegiate shooting matches, one of which was national in scope. Also, the unit supplies a four-man color guard, in charge of displaying the flag.

This year the local unit was on hand for two city-wide R.O.T.C. competitions, and appeared in several parades. And, of course, they made their usual good impression on the Defense Department inspectors when those gentlemen paid their annual visit.

All in all, the R.O. deserves to be better known by our students.

Well, it's all wrapped up.

The 1951 edition of El Camino has gone to press, and we of the staff can breathe a concerted sigh of relief.

The multiple copies of the original dummy have all been completed and the photos pasted up in their proper places. The last picture schedule has been doped out, the last decision on layout has been made.

Now, of course, we're sorry it's over. Already we're forgetting the work and the worry, and remembering only the fun and satisfaction of turning our plans into the tangible reality you hold in your hands. (This may not apply to Mr. Wallace. He's our sponsor, and the real brains of the outfit. For every headache one of us has suffered, he's had several.)

Working on the annual has been a thoroughly enjoyable experience. We only wish that every teacher shared our belief in the importance of getting out a valuable edition.

Under the guidance of Miss Seda Garapedian the North Hollywood Arcade came up with an outstanding semester of weekly papers throughout the whole year.

High honors were gained through contests by the Arcade during the year and under two excellent editors, Francis Reynolds and Catherine Narbel, the page editors and reports came up with a fine example of journalism.

Coach Paul Xanthos did the photography for the paper and his interest helped Miss Garapedian out greatly.

"Scholarship for Service"

That's the motto of the Scholarship Society, an organization made up of "A" students. And these precocious young'uns really live up to it. Every member — barring the officers — gives up ten recreation periods or five noon periods out of every semester. These he dedicates to coaching fellow Huskies who are having trouble with one or more of their subjects.

The members of the Society make themselves useful in other important ways. Every year the outfit has presented some valuable book to the school library. This year the members decided to give a potted plant instead. The plant will be placed near the entrance into the main building.

Once a year the Society holds a meeting which any interested Huskie can attend. Often the group presents a talent show, just to prove that scholarly folks can have varied interests and abilities. Or, they may hold a debate. This semester the group held a verbal jousting match on the scorching Mac-Arthur controversy.

The Society traditionally winds up the year's activities with a banquet, to which alumnae of the organization are invited.

All the many Chaldlerites who have benefitted from the existance of the Society can give thanks to Mrs. Rosen, whose energetic and able work as faculty sponsor keeps the group running.

TREBLE CLEF

W'51

N.H.H.S. boasts four . . . count 'em, four . . . different vocal groups.

Of course, the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs need no introduction; their activities are familiar to all. Without them there would be no operetta, no yearly Christmas program. And this fall's sparkling variety show, "Club Paradise," would never have been presented.

Less well known are two subordinate groups, the Treble Clef Society and the Chanters. Each is made up of talented beginners grooming themselves for Glee Club. They're kept pretty busy.

TREBLE CLEF

CHANTERS

W'51

The Chanters — all boys — harmonized before a select audience at a special invitational assembly in May. Both groups took part in the Christmas program. Treble Clef girls serve as usherettes at every musical show held on campus. In addition, they've entertained at P.T.A. meetings and Open House.

P.S. We musn't forget to salute the faculty members in charge of putting the 'ids through their paces. Miss Hughey, Mr. Rossi, and Mr. Harry all deserve far more praise than we have room to give them.

Orchestra

Students waiting in the hashline at noon find themselves regaled with music out of nowhere. "Nowhere" in this case is the nearby orchestra bungalow. And the entertainment is pretty high class. Our orchestra was one of only two high school aggregations to win a first division rating at the all-city competition in March. The next step was the all-state contest in Fullerton. Mr. Di Soro's magnificently-trained group plucked themselves a second division rating.

Despite their recognized excellence, however, these melodious kids have appeared rarely before the student body. They gave one concert at a special assembly in May. Later that same month they backed up the warblers at several performances of the Spring operetta.

On both occasions the players acquitted themselves admirably. Our only regret is that they did not appear more often.

B A N D

Lots of glory and a collection of sore feet . . . that's the net profit amassed this year by North Hollywood High's band. Mr. Di Sarro's brass brigade has been in the public eye of late — very popular and very busy.

This year marked the aggregation's first appearance in the Santa Claus parade. Its music has always been first-rate, but in previous years lack of attractive uniforms kept our crew out of the pre-Christmas doin's. In 1950 that situation was remedied. All decked out in their new blue and grey outfits, our band made an impressive escort for Saint Nick. The band was on hand for several other civic events, including the American Legion Parade and the Armistice Day parade. Also, they played at the Milk Bowl game.

All these excursions didn't keep the group from providing rousing background music for all the Huskies' football games.

You have to admire the kids' musicianship — and their energy.

MR. McLEOD—Vice Principal

An orderly crew is an important factor in a ship's safety on the high seas. Mr. McLeod, as first mate, must see that the vessel's regulations are obeyed. Considering the demands of his job, Mr. McLeod is a remarkably agreeable and cooperative officer of the deck.

Mr. McLeod has never confined his duties to maintaining discipline. He can usually find time to help his charges straighten out their difficulties.

All in all, Mr. McLeod is a first mate worthy of a 21-gun salute.

MRS. SALLEE—Vice Principal

Girls' Vice Principal . . . Coordinator of School Activities . . . Official Censor . . .

No, we're not referring to three people. One energetic woman, Mrs. Mamie Sallee by name, could be dubbed with all three titles. Of course, the latter two aren't official designations, but they refer to duties which demand a great deal of Mrs. Sallee's time.

The daily parade of students in and out of Mrs. Sallee's office indicates the variety of her duties. Girls needing personal guidance, student officers with problems concerning school activities, parents worried about their offspring — they're all in a day's work, and they can all count on Mrs. Sallee's careful consideration and willing help.

Seated: Mrs. Ludwick. Standing: Miss Miller, Mr. Betts, Mrs. Northcote, Miss Price, Miss Duncan and Mr. Berkowitz.

The navigator of an ocean-going vessel is charged with plotting the ship's course across the vast reaches of empty sea. His job demands great training and skill, for he has little to go by but a few instruments and, overhead, a thoroughly confusing array of astral guideposts.

Our counselors here at N.H.H.S. have a good deal in common with those maritime wizards. They, too, must guide others to goals not yet in sight. They must help each student find the academic route he must follow to reach that distant place wherein his dreams become realities.

Many years from now, those of us who will have achieved some measure of success may look on ourselves as self-made men and women. If so, we will have made the mistake of forgetting the high school counselors who aimed us in the right direction.
